CONDOLENCE MESSAGE
FOR JHIMLI MUKHERJEE PANDEY

We are saddened and shocked to learn about the sad demise of our compatriot Jhimli Mukherjee Pandey. She was in her late forties. Jhimli was succumbed to her injuries in a road accident while travelling in Jaisalmir, Rajasthan.

Jhimli, always jovial and amicable soul, was serving The Times of India for years together. She was also with The Statesman for a brief period. We gather that her mother and husband Ramesh were accompanying her when the fatal road accident happened but they are out of danger.

Jhimli, master writer in both English and Bengali languages, was currently translating a Sashi Tharur book in Bengali. She had to her credit a novel in English and several Bengali books.

We express our deepest sympathy to her bereaved family and pray before Almighty to rest her in heavenly abode.
